Schoology Online Course

This course is designed to equip teachers with the skills and knowledge needed to effectively implement work-based learning experiences for students with disabilities.

Participants will explore the importance of work-based learning as a critical component of secondary transition planning and learn basic guidelines for creating sound, legal, and meaningful programs.

The activities are designed to empower participants to develop a work-based learning toolkit that supports the implementation of course outcomes.

Target Audience

Special Education Teachers, Transition Coordinators, Special Education Administrators
